

CHEDER CHESHEK

Your peek at how Chinuch and Cheshek go hand in hand

A Message from the Menahel

When Avraham left Charan as per Hashem's command, he did not leave alone. Together with his family and possessions, Avraham took his many talmidim whom he had gathered over the years.

Yet they are not mentioned again in Chumash. Indeed, Chazal tell us that they eventually went astray when they lost their kind and devoted Rebbe. Their motivation to serve Hashem was not intrinsic enough to do it on their own.

They serve as a lesson to how necessary it is to be intrinsically motivated to grow and develop in our Avodas Hashem.

This past Tuesday, our staff focused on practices and techniques that promote intrinsic student motivation. Using the principles two great programs - Love and Logic and Conscious Discipline - our staff explored the prerequisites to building a child's sense of responsibility and gained practical language and tools as well.

The energy and positivity during the workshops clearly displayed our staff's intrinsic motivation for growth! They are truly fit to model, teach and develop this important value in our children.
